

SANDHOFEN, MANNHEIM

Urban Development of the Sandhofen "Stich" Centre in Mannheim, Germany

Project period
2001

Services provided
Urban design concept including model, public relations work

Technical details
As a consequence of the traffic abatement in the urban centre, including adaptation of the tracks and halts of the light rail transit system, the abandoned industrial sites are now available for redevelopment. The proposed development of the town centre will set a high urban design standard, ensuring high quality living, working and commercial conditions. This concept is supported by the creation of a "market place" and green areas.
